When flood. water receded on June 3, 2013, it was discovered thatthere was extensive erosion damage to Illinois Route 9 at the Spoon River in Fulton County, Illinois. The erosion left intermittent drop-offs of up to ten feet deep immediately adjacent to the south edge of pavement, This section of IL9 initially closed on May 29,2013, as a result of the rising water. As a result of the erosion, it remained closed to all traffic until June 6, 2013 when it opened to one-lane traffic utilizing temporary traffic signals. Re-opening the roadway to two-lane traffic will greatly reduce the time delay for emergency services.
