Additional Information:

Biography of Elizabeth Jordan

Elizabeth Jordan is a constitutional litigator and civil rights attorney from Chicago's South Side. Her work centers on breaking down systems of oppression, primarily focusing on achieving justice and equity through the law. Ms. Jordan earned her bachelor's degree from Washington University in St. Louis and her Juris Doctorate from Georgetown University Law Center. She currently serves as Assistant Attorney General and Social Equity Counsel to Attorney General Raoul. Ms. Jordan leads the office's work protecting and promoting diversity, equity and inclusion practices and responding to anti-DEI efforts. She was named as one of Chicago's 40 Gamechangers Under 40 by WVON and Ariel Investments, and she is a frequent guest lecturer on civil rights issues at local law schools. When she's not working, she enjoys playing scrabble and cooking with her husband Charles and her two stepsons.

Biography of Craig B. Futterman

Craig B. Futterman is a Clinical Professor of Law at the University of Chicago Law School and a Resident Dean in the College. He founded and has served as the Director of the Civil Rights and Police Accountability Project of the Mandel Legal Aid Clinic since 2000. He was elected to a Simon Visiting Professorship in the School of Law at the University of Manchester, U.K., in 2018/2019. Before his appointment to the Law Faculty, Professor Futterman was a Lecturer in Law and Director of Public Interest Programs at Stanford Law School. He previously joined Futterman & Howard, Chtd., a boutique law firm concentrating in complex federal litigation. There, Professor Futterman specialized in civil rights and constitutional matters, with a special focus on racial discrimination, education, and police brutality. Before that, he served as a trial attorney in the Juvenile Division of the Cook County Public Defender's Office.

Mr. Futterman received his J.D. from Stanford Law School in 1991 and graduated with the highest distinction from Northwestern University with a Bachelor of Arts in Sociology and Economics.
